Re: Senstudy 75
62-116395

packages were reviewed by Section Chief William O. Cregar and Special Agents Leon F. Schwartz and Thomas J. McNiff in Room 4123 JEH.

Material contained therein runs the entire gambit from CIA cooperation, and in some instances financing, of Bureau sensitive operations in foreign intelligence field, to CIA involvement in domestic affairs including cooperation with police departments and other Federal agencies. In all, it was determined that approximately 174 pages of the document contain information which in some respect has a bearing on this Bureau's operations.

Pertinent page numbers were identified to Mrs. Mowitt and she is taking this Bureau's request for these pages back to CIA Headquarters for the purpose of obtaining authorization to furnish this Bureau with copies of the pages in which this Bureau is interested. Mrs. Mowitt advised that she would insure our request in this respect received expeditious attention and she will furnish us with the results at the earliest time.

RECOMMENDATION:

None. Above submitted for information. You will be kept advised of developments.

Re: Testimony of Retired FBI
Special Agent (SA) Robert R.
Nichols Before SSC Executive Session

Nichols was questioned about the communist background of Levison. He replied that he could not discuss this matter because it would jeopardize an FBI source. Nichols indicated that he did not know the identity of the source. Seidel, who did most of the questioning throughout the session, then asked Nichols a series of questions attempting to determine whether the source was a technical one, a foreign one, a "Soviet" one, also naming several other types. Nichols' answer in each case was that he did not know. At one point, Seidel claimed that Nichols had said it was a foreign source. Nichols then stated he did not recall having so stated and that if he had so stated, it was wrong as he did not know the source. Seidel then asked how Nichols knew that the information he had would disclose the source if he was unaware of the source's identity. Nichols responded that inasmuch as he knew in advance the interview would include the subject of Levison, he had asked Phillips of the FBI what he could discuss about Levison. Nichols then related that Phillips had asked Nichols what he knew or recalled about Levison's background and that when he gave Phillips certain information, Phillips told him that that information would possibly identify the source and, therefore, would be privileged. (The Nichols-Phillips exchange referred to here took place during the early morning of that same day, May 30, 1975).

Re: Testimony of Retired FBI

Court (SFM 1a)WFOG(a)11

Seidel questioned Nichols concerning alleged harassment of King by the FBI and mentioned such specific allegations as the following: Sending of a tape recording to Mrs. King; anonymous telephone calls to attempt to cancel press meetings by King; false fire alarms; and furnishing of information about King to the clergy and other news media, including an Atlanta editor, Ralph McGill. In each instance during this phase of the questioning, which Nichols described as rather extensive by Seidel, Nichols answered that he did not participate in any such actions and was unaware that any such things were being done. He also told Seidel that he knew of no COINTELPRO (counterintelligence) activity on the part of the FBI against King.

Nichols was asked if he had contact at Atlanta, Georgia, Police Department (PD) in the King investigation which Nichols acknowledged he had been assigned to in 1964. Nichols answered that he had confided in one detective in the security detail of the PD and on the urging of Seidel, Nichols furnished the detective's identity as Sergeant Bobby Moore.

Re: Testimony of Retired FBI
Special Agent (SA) Robert R.
Nichols Before SSC Executive Session

Also at the conclusion of the testimony, Nichols was told that a draft of the testimony would be made available for him to review for editing purposes. The SSC would telephone Nichols who was returning to Atlanta to advise him the draft would be available and Nichols would have five days to review same. Nichols was told that the draft could not be mailed to him but that someone might bring it to Atlanta; otherwise, Nichols would have to return to Washington, D. C., if he wanted to review it. Expenses for such a second trip were not mentioned.

On June 2, 1975, Nichols telephoned FBI Headquarters from Birmingham, Alabama, where he was temporarily residing and advised he recalled the following additional details of what was covered in his testimony.

Seidel asked Nichols if information received through technical coverage included information relating to Senator Huddleston asked Nichols how it would be possible to follow the Bureau instruction precisely and Nichols responded that it would be very difficult to comply and in some instances, it would not be possible. Seidel then commented, "Why - because of the nature of the beast?" (wiretap).
